About me

Hi, I'm Alberto, a young programmer with great experience in the world of work. I like computer science, programming and all the mathematical sciences, as is the case in physics, I also love classical music and instruments such as violin and piano. My main hobby (and work) is programming and it is what I dedicate most of my time, I like to program everything in any language and carry out innovative projects integrating various technologies, my specialty is the development of web applications.
